

A Groundbreaking Movement by Jonathan Smith

I envision this movement is a continuation of Dr. Martin Luther King's Dream, Sojourner Truth, Malcolm X, and Harriet Tubman's foundational work they started in civil rights. These civil rights activists worked diligently in building the bridges of equality for African Americans through, nonviolent protests, sit ins, and marches. The foundational work by these civil rights activists was essential in setting the tone for the future of the Black Lives Matter Movement to lead the future. I envision the Black Lives Matter movement will create awareness to bring unity to our country through proactive measures. This movement will bring our country to a place of peace and tranquility.

The Black Lives Matter Movement will shed light on the way we redefine our country. I envision the movement to use creative measures to voice their innovative ideas, critical thinking, and collaboration to transform our country. The only way this movement can build these bridges to equality is by working together utilizing every skill we have to be heard. We must redefine the vision of the movement by connecting our inner selves to the purpose of achieving our blueprint that we must create. I envision the movement to redefine what it means to be equal in our country viewing life through a new glass lens.

Another way that I envision this movement will bring awareness in using our resources to address the issues of racial discrimination, and brutality. The movement can utilize nonviolent protests measures through marches, social media platforms to take our country to a new level. I envision greatness from the Black Lives Matter movement because we have a lot more resources now than we had during Sojourner Truth, Malcolm X, and Harriet Tubman's time.

The time for the Black Lives Matter Movement is essential in creating a better secure future for generations to come. It is important in this vision to train the young generation to continue this life fulfilling purpose of the Black Lives Matter Movement.

The Black Lives Matter movement is inspiring to me because I have faced hardships such as microaggressions in my life. One of the microaggressions I faced was in middle school I was told that I would not make it in life far with how I looked. These words have taken a toll on me through the years. I will say learning about the Black Lives Matter Movement, Richard Allen, Rosa Parks, Bessie Coleman, Tuskegee Airmen, and spending time in Montgomery Alabama in the summers with Mrs. Anderson taught me a lot of where this movement will take us far, and my ability as a Mechanical Engineer Technician.

One of the ways I see this movement taking us to new heights are by redefining the new narrative of our history. I envision this movement to reduce racial tensions, promote economic freedom, and build stable communities. I envision this movement to provide the bridges for educational advancement, economic freedom, and equality. I envision this movement to ignite a flame in everyone apart of this movement to fulfill their calling to their purpose. Lastly, I envision the Black Lives Matter Movement to fulfill the works of our founding civil rights activists that started the groundwork years ago igniting everyone's passion from past to future a groundbreaking movement. We must continue the work of our civil rights scholars and ignite the flame in all of us to stand together and build our communities.
