

Diversity in the CCSU Master's Program in Marriage and Family Therapy

The Master's Program at Central Connecticut State University draws a diversity of students. Students in the program come from all walks of life and from all geographic areas – urban, suburban, and rural. Students in the program are predominantly female, as is typical in the field. Since 2009, there have been a steadily rising percentage of non-Caucasian students in the program. The program has also had many international students in the program, including students from Argentina, Bangladesh, Brazil, China, Dubai, France, Germany, Ghana, India, Iran, Israel, Japan, Lebanon, Nicaragua, Poland, Russia, South Africa, Spain, Taiwan, Vietnam, and more.

¹ "Ethnicity" is determined based on how students self-report on their university applications. The university is working on how to be more inclusive on their application materials in allowing for multiple descriptors of ethnicity for those who self-identify as multi-ethnic or multi-racial.

² "Gender" is determined based on how students self-report on their university applications. The university is working on how to be more inclusive on their application materials in allowing for descriptors of non-binary choices of identification in regard to gender.
